

Re: Israel Research Fellowship

To Whom It May Concern:

UN Watch is proud to be associated with the Israel Research Fellowship, and before it, as of 2006, with the Legacy Heritage Fellowship.

The Fellows that we hosted contributed significantly to the work of UN Watch, helping us to promote universal human rights, fight the scourge of antisemitism and advocate for equal treatment of Israel at the United Nations.

Thanks to the Fellowship program, UN Watch was enriched by the talents and abilities of bright, motivated and dynamic college graduates from the United States, France and the Netherlands. They formed an integral part of our team.

Not only did the Fellows help UN Watch, but the program empowered them to go on and affect change on a global scale. After completing the Fellowship, one was selected to become a speechwriter for the Israeli Mission to the United Nations, and was then admitted to the prestigious MBA program of France's INSEAD. Another became a political officer with the European Union Mission to the United Nations and earned a Master's at Columbia's famed School of International and Public Affairs.

The Fellows were intelligent, diligent and creative. They took the initiative to raise key issues at the UN Human Rights Council, or to draft op-eds for the international press.

Thanks to one of our Fellows, UN Watch expanded into YouTube with catchy and well-produced video clips seen by hundreds of thousands around the world. They also extended our reach to new global audiences by translating our materials into multiple languages and reaching out to journalists and fellow activist groups.

We are therefore delighted to recommend the program to organizations wishing both to benefit from the contributions of such impressive young people, as well as to strengthen their own ability to help make this world a better place.

Sincerely,
Hillel C. Neuer
